

Information on this site should never be used as a substitute for consultation with professional advisors.

Email to a professional at McTaxes, Inc. or to the firm itself does not establish a client relationship, which may only be established through the execution of an engagement letter by the client and an authorized representative of McTaxes, Inc.

We cannot assure the confidentiality of information transmitted through the email contact provided in this site. Accordingly, we recommend that only basic contact information and the general nature of the inquiry be provided. If a client relationship is established, we communicate with clients using encryption through a secure network.

*****

Under no circumstances may time sensitive tax information be transmitted to our general email address, whether or not a client relationship has been established. When and if such a relationship is established, we provide strict protocols for submission of time sensitive confidential information.

*****